

POSTIES DELIVER MESSAGE AT OPEN PICNIC

Media Advisory

September 19, 2014

What: CUPW will be celebrating solidarity and our fight to keep postal service in the lower mainland at a picnic at Rocky Point Park in Port Moody on Saturday afternoon. There will be treats for everyone and a barbeque. We will have speakers Irene Lanzinger, Peter Julian and Fin Donnelly speaking about the Canada Post charter review and the sweeping changes announced by Canada Post and endorsed by the federal government on December 11, 2013.

When: Saturday, September 20th at 3:30 pm

Who: Canadian Union of Postal Workers and allies

Where: Meet at Rocky Point Park at 3:30 pm
Then march to constituency office of Hon. James Moore
2603 St. John's Street Port Moody

Why: The 5th anniversary of the 2009 Canadian Postal Service Charter, which promises a review of the Charter every five years. Postal workers and supporters want to know why the Conservatives couldn't wait for the Charter review, a public and accountable consultation process, before rushing to gut public postal services.

Union representatives will be available for interviews following the event.

A media kit will be available.
